Brown named to lead Madison schools as new superintendent

Ex-Jennings superintendent is already on the job

Dr. Teresa Brown

BY BOB DEMAREE

Dr. Teresa Brown was already busy at work Thursday, the next morning after being hired as the new superintendent for Madison Consolidated Schools at Wednesday's school board meeting.

"I'm excited to get started here," said Brown, whose contract runs through June 30, 2025. "I appreciate the faith that has been put in me to lead the school district. I don't take that lightly. I know that's a really, serious decision. It's the most important decision a school board makes, and I take that seriously, and look forward to getting to know the Madison community members and contributing."

Brown comes to Madison after serving as Superintendent for Jennings County Schools the last five years. She said she "loved my time in Jennings. It will always have a piece of my heart, having been my first Superintendent position. It was special. We went through the pandemic there. I have great relationships there with people that are important to me."

MCS board votes 4-1 to cancel Skinner's contract

Teacher, coach was in incident involving student

BY BOB DEMAREE

Tyson Skinner, employed by Madison Consolidated Schools as a high school business teacher for a year and as head wrestling coach for more than a decade, was dismissed by Madison School Board at its meeting on Wednesday.

Skinner had been on paid administrative leave since a March 31 incident in which he left his classroom to retrieve a truant student and then struggled with that student while they were returning to the building. He has now been dismissed after the board voted 4-1 — board member Larry Henry the lone vote in opposing — to cancel his contract despite several people speaking on his behalf at the board meeting.

Skinner was hired as a business teacher for Madison Consolidated High School in May of 2021 and has been Madison's head wrestling coach since 2010, last year becoming the winningest wrestling coach in Cub history.

Following the March 31 incident that led to Skinner's dismissal, Madison School Board President David Storie said there was a process of gathering information in the incident. "Any time there's a dismissal of teacher and it goes to this point to actually dismiss, there's basically a trial."

Storie said the school administration's legal counsel was represented by attorney Susan D. Beavers from the firm Lorenzo Bevers Braman and Connell while the board was advised by attorney Michelle Cooper from the firm Lewis & Kappes, PC. He said the legal teams prepared findings of fact with conclusions of law supporting the decision to cancel Skinner's contract.

The Madison Courier filed a public records request to review the findings of fact document regarding the cancellation of Skinner's contract and those documents were made available on Thursday afternoon.

Chip seal work slated to begin in Switzerland

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Indiana Department of Transportation maintenance crews plan to begin chip seal operations starting on or after Monday, July 18, on State Road 156 in Switzerland County.

Crews will be active from just east of State Road 101 near Log Lick Road west of Florence to State Road 250 near Patriot. Motorists should be aware of lane closures and flagging while work is in progress.

Following chip seal on State Road 156 from State Road 101 to State Road 250, crews plan to begin work in a second location on State Road 156 in Switzerland County, starting on or after Wednesday, July 20. Operations will take place from just east of West Junction State Road 56 to just west of State Road 101 near Vevay.

Chip seal work typically lasts three to four days per location depending upon weather. During operations, existing pavement is coated with liquid asphalt, which seals cracks and provides waterproof protection. This extends the service life of the roadway and lowers maintenance costs. Once the seal coat is complete, loose aggregate is applied and swept from the road. After a curing period, crews will return to fog seal the new driving surface and apply pavement markings.

BROWN

However, she also felt the time was right for a change and Madison was an ideal place to do that.

"Madison is a great place to live and a nice community. There are great things going on here. I had visited before and had seen what they are doing with Cub Industries, and I was impressed with that. It just looked like it was going to be a good fit for where I am in my life. I was ready for a new challenge. Some of the goals that were important to me in Jennings five years ago I felt we had accomplished those things and just ready to try something new."

Madison School Board President David Storie said Brown brings a vast amount of experience to Madison Consolidated Schools. "She really knows her stuff," he said, noting that for all the questions they asked, she provided knowledgeable responses. "I think we did good."

Brown began her career in education in Indianapolis as a classroom teacher in Indianapolis public schools (1986-88) and Decatur Township schools (1988-94) before serving 20 years in building administration as principal at various middle and elementary schools. "I loved being a principal. That's why I did it so long," she said.

In 2013, she went to work at the Indiana Department of Education as assistant superintendent of school improvement during Glenda Ritz's term as Superintendent of Public Instruction. "I oversaw all the areas of school improvement so everything that's related to curriculum instruction, special populations, all the grants, every instructional area that relates to teaching and learning," she said, noting it was "a great opportunity to spend time in schools all over the state and see the great things that were happening, and just learn from other educators."

In 2016, she took over as Superintendent at Jennings County Schools, which with all her previous experience provides a well-rounded view of education. "Now, I've had building (experience), I've had state and I've had district so I know how all those systems work together and I think that's helpful," said Brown.

A 1986 graduate of Franklin College, Brown originally enrolled there on a journalism scholarship with plans to pursue journalism as a career. "That was sort of my passion. I was editor of the newspaper then editor of yearbook in college. That was sort of my thing, but then I switched to education," she said.

In 1995, Brown completed her masters in school administration from Butler University to achieve her principal's license. In 2011, she earned a doctorate in school administration at Indiana State University to obtain her superintendent's license. In 2021, she achieved another doctorate from Indiana University with a major in educational leadership and minor in learning sciences.

Today's schools face many challenges, but Brown said she thinks that's a part of the bigger picture of all that's happening in the world.

"I think it's challenging for all us, the economy, the gas prices, the grocery prices, and certainly healthcare with everything that's gone on with the pandemic in how that's impacted transportation, and goods and services," she said. "It's a challenging time in our country on many levels, and education has not escaped that. It's just a part of that. We're part of another sub group of an area that's trying to figure all of this out."

Brown said it is helpful to hear what people have to say. "Everybody has strong opinions how it should be. We listen and give everyone a voice. At the end of the day, I always come back to what's best for our kids and staff. That's all I can do," she said noting "sometimes people do say things that help you re-think your position."

Most importantly, it's a matter of staying focused on the work of education in providing leadership for the school district. "You have to have strong sense of your moral purpose, and your compass, and what way it points, and for me I'm relentless on staying focused on what's best for our kids and our staff. I don't have all the answers. I require people around me to provide guidance, collectively we figure things out," she said.

Brown said she also relies on data in making decisions "to help us to continue to move forward." She noted that part of collecting data "is talking to people. There's quantitative data where you're looking at the numbers but there's also qualitative data where you talk to people what their vision is, and what the story is, how things have functioned. So, it's looking at both of those pieces. Certainly, the people with history have a sense of what's working and what's not working. I value that input, and use that with the quantitative data to make decisions that's good for our kids."

Brown thinks much good can come through her role as superintendent, and it's something she cherishes. "I love being a superintendent," she said. "You're trusted to take care of a lot of people. I greatly appreciate having that opportunity. When you're all aligned and you are doing the same work, you can have tremendous impact on a school district, on a community and a kid's life. Whether it's better facilities or academic programs or offering them new opportunities. Being able bring that someplace, or cultivate or develop it is just exciting. I love to innovate and I love to work with other people. The challenge to figuring out what we can do things better has always driven me."

Brown and her husband, Lee, have two sons. Sam is a teacher at Center Grove and Max is a sophomore at Purdue University seeking a degree in bio chemistry with plans to eventually go to medical school. She also has three dogs and loves animals.

The hiring of Brown means that Interim Superintendent Daniel Noel's time with the school corporation is coming to an end. Noel was hired as interim following the resignation of Dr. Jeffrey Studebaker on March 31.

"Dr. Brown, you're very fortunate," Noel said. "You're going to have a great board to work with, and you've got great people here to work with. You have great teachers and principals and custodians. You name it, they're great people. And this is a great community. You're very fortunate to be coming here."

Indiana sees big budget surplus jump as tax refund eyed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana's surging tax collections over the past year have pushed state government's budget surplus up more than 50% to about $6.1 billion as legislators prepare to take up a proposal for a second round of refund payments from that surplus, state officials announced Friday.

The jump from last year's record high of $3.9 billion in cash reserves comes as the Republican-dominated Legislature is set to consider GOP Gov. Eric Holcomb's plan to distribute $225 payments to taxpayers for what he calls "inflationary relief."

Democrats have questioned the effectiveness of the $125 refunds that have been slowly distributed since May and have pushed to suspend Indiana's 62 cents-per-gallon in gasoline taxes, saying that would provide more immediate relief from sky-high inflation.

Some Republican legislators have raised concerns about spending reserves on refunds when inflation is increasing the cost of state construction projects, but Holcomb's top budget adviser said the new refund plan costing the state about $1 billion was a "prudent" proposal.

According to the findings of fact, Skinner left his classroom to return a truant student to the classroom, and approached that student in the high school parking lot. As they were walking through the parking lot to return to the building, Skinner turned toward the student and grabbed the student by the upper arm. A review of school security video showed Skinner struggling with the student and the student appearing to go limp and fall to the ground. Skinner then grabbed the student by the waist and shoulder, returning the student to his feet.

The report stated that as the student struggled with Skinner, the student fell to the ground a second time to pick up his cell phone that he had dropped. The security video shows Skinner a second time putting his hands on the student, getting him to his feet and escorting him to the building. Portions of the altercation were witnessed by multiple individuals who were in the high school parking lot, and observers reported the incident to school administration who reported it to school resource officer Yancy Denning.

Skinner testified that the student was not threatening to harm himself nor was he threatening to harm anyone at the school. At a private board conference, Skinner admitted that he placed his hands on the student and did not do so in defense of himself or others.

Denning testified at the private board conference that he had concerns of Skinner violating Indiana Code 35-42-2-1 © which prohibits a person from touching another person in a rude, insolent or angry manner. Skinner did not deny touching the student, but denied it was in a rude, insolent or angry manner.

Denning testified that if he had personally witnessed the incident as it took place that he would have arrested Skinner.

In the conclusions of law, Interim Superintendent Daniel Noel recommended Skinner's teaching contract be cancelled due to insubordination, neglect of duty and other good or just cause. It cited that Skinner admitted to placing hands on the student while not being in defense of himself, others or property of the school corporation, and that he also did not seek the assistance of administration or law enforcement when dealing with the student. Instead, it stated Skinner engaged in poor professional judgment that resulted in a risk of physical harm to the student. And was alarming enough to cause onlookers to report the altercation to school administrators.

Board members made no comments at the time of their vote, but board member Lori Slygh did have remarks at the end of the meeting when board comments are made. "The decisions that the board has had to make over the last few months have been very difficult, whether it's hiring personnel or dismissing personnel. Those decisions are complicated, and takes a lot of work, and a lot of energy, a lot of resources, and time for us to do," Slygh said. "We have not taken those decisions lightly" and they are made by looking at the evidence that's provided while also following board policy. "As a board member I promise to uphold board policies. The decisions I make are based on what are our board policies and uphold those policies" which she said is a part of how she made her decisions "in hiring personnel and discussing personnel."

Slygh, a counselor at Southwestern High School, said that in that role she's aware "that kids make poor choices all the time. It doesn't make them bad kids. It just makes them bad choices. Unfortunately, there are consequences to our choices whether they're good or bad, and I think that holds true for adults as well."

Before the vote was taken to cancel Skinner's contract, several people in attendance spoke on his behalf including his wife, Stacie Skinner, who said that "coaching, mentoring and volunteering in the community have been a highlight and passion of his, and now we are a family built on those values, and I can't be more proud."

She said "as a wife of a veteran I am proud of him, and thankful that he wants to give back after all that he gave" in pushing local youth "for greater things for their success. Students have gotten experiences they wouldn't have had — scholarships, accolades because of the work they have put in, and that brings great joy. Watching them work through adversity and come back and work harder means even greater things for that student. The sky is the limit, and Tyson's passion only provides positivity for the youth of Madison and Madison Consolidated."

"Helping others, working hard and being a servant leader are values Tyson and I have guiding our lives," Stacie said. "The last 100 plus days have been anything but easy for our family … we are a Madison Cub family" including Tyson and herself, and their three children. "Tyson was born and raised in Madison, and continues to love MCS, and wants to be back helping students," she said, adding with all of his years with the school system "I hope it will be seen that his impact has been positive not just for today but also for the future" for the positive he will do if given the opportunity to remain with the school corporation.

Tina Mitchell said that by relieving Skinner from his teaching and coaching positions "this board and administration would be doing a great injustice to the students, athletes and community."

Amanda Vance said her son graduated from MCHS last year, and "was very quiet and reserved, shy and backward, and Tyson helped them out of that when he started wrestling in his freshman year." Vance said Skinner "has taught those kids so much" and been a positive influence on all of them.

Casey Stewart talked about how Skinner supported her son through tough times when many others wouldn't, providing "love and support, that he was still there for him."

"We need more adults like Tyson" who provide that kind of support "to look past their bad choices, and to be there for them and support them," Stewart said, noting Skinner supports all students. "He doesn't care what shape, size, family, money, background, he doesn't care about any of that. He cares about every kid for who they are … from this side there are a lot of people who love Tyson and support him for the things that he has done in the past."

"I don't know if this is a decision of good out-weighing bad. I don't know what your job is tonight. I just want you to know if it is that decision, none of us are perfect, we're all human, we all make mistakes," Stewart said. "I don't know what his was. I really have no clue. I will say that if it is a decision between good and bad, his good outweighs bad by 10-fold. This man deceives to keep the position he's in."

Diana Resendiz also woke in support of Skinner. "Tyson has been more than a coach, he's been like a father to my kids … he's pushed them, motivated them, encouraged them to be better and to do better" and "he truly cares each individual kid, he truly does … he's not just a teacher or just a coach, he's a mentor, he's a father figure, he's a great person, and if we lose Tyson we're losing a great asset to our high school and a lot of kids who look up to him."

"Information from angry, biased, or someone with a personal agenda that may be pushing items that basically hide the truth or at least interfere with it can be a problem in situations like this," said Tami Hagemier, adding that people know there are "unruly kids" who become dangerous to others, and school resource officers are not always available, and there are times qualified immunity is necessary for teachers and coaches to be able to protect children from other children.

"So, I ask you to consider that," Hagemier said. "Not every teacher can step up and do what Tyson Skinner has done" for the students. "People are looking to you for fairness, and that's tough, that is really tough when maybe politics or pressure is coming from other places. I want you to remember that Tyson is a Marine combat veteran. They leave no one behind. Yes, he brought that to his teaching. He leaves no child behind … and that's what happened."

"We all know the child left the classroom and he got worried, not the first time," said Hagemier. "I know what happened between principal and student and teacher. If it was my child, if it were my child, you would want your teacher to act. You would not want your child left to make poor decisions in a parking lot or anywhere. You would have wanted a teacher to at least try to help your child."

"When you talk about what to do with a coach and a teacher, Tyson has done more than his share to keep kids from trouble" in many ways, helping them with academics, sports and family problems, "but most importantly, he's raised their self-esteem and their self-respect so that they don't harm themselves, and they believe and they have faith in themselves. That's invaluable when you have a teacher that can do that," Hagemier added.

Votto delivers, Reds surprise Yanks 7-6 in 10 to win series

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Raise your hand if you saw that coming from the Cincinnati Reds.

Joey Votto lined a tiebreaking double in a three-run 10th inning for his second go-ahead hit of the night, and Cincinnati beat the New York Yankees 7-6 on Thursday to earn an unexpected series win.

Last in the NL Central, the Reds got an outstanding outing from Luis Castillo and took two of three at Yankee Stadium from the top team in the majors. They blew a sizable lead for the second consecutive night, but this time recovered and held on to win for the sixth time in seven games overall.

Joey Votto

Boosted by a ninth-inning comeback in the opener Tuesday night, it's the first time they've won back-to-back series all season.

"This whole series felt like a playoff series," Cincinnati manager David Bell said. "It's a great experience for our team and that's how you get better."

It was only the sixth time in major league history a team with a winning percentage below .400 won a road series against an opponent with a .700 winning percentage 50 games into a season, according to STATS.

The last time it happened was 2001, when the struggling Kansas City Royals upended Seattle. Before that, it hadn't happened in 46 years.

New York has lost only four series all season and has won 20 of its last 24 home games.

Aaron Judge hit his major league-leading 31st home run to start a Yankees comeback in the eighth — one inning after he made a diving catch in center field.

Gleyber Torres tied it 4-all with a two-run homer off Jeff Hoffman, costing Castillo a win. Matched up in a crisp duel with fellow All-Star Nestor Cortes, the right-hander pitched seven splendid innings of two-hit ball.

Tyler Stephenson followed Votto's double off Lucas Luetge (2-3) with an RBI double of his own, and Donovan Solano added a run-scoring single with two outs to make it 7-4.

Matt Carpenter led off the bottom of the 10th with a two-run homer against winner Reiver Sanmartin (3-4), who got two outs in the ninth inning.

New York tried to finish off yet another rally but Dauri Moreta got two outs for his first major league save, retiring DJ LeMahieu on well-struck drive to center field with two on to end it.

Votto gave the Reds a 2-1 lead in the eighth with an RBI single off reliever Jonathan Loáisiga, just activated from the injured list. Farmer added a two-run single to make it 4-1.

Castillo struck out eight and walked four, throwing 114 pitches in an impressive trade audition for contending clubs.

"He's nasty," Yankees manager Aaron Boone said. "He was tough."

Cincinnati figures to be a seller ahead of the Aug. 2 deadline, and Castillo is a prime target for teams in need of starting pitching.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Reds: Senzel returned to the starting lineup in center field. He was a late scratch Wednesday with back stiffness and was caught stealing as a pinch runner in the eighth. ... INF/DH Mike Moustakas was placed on the injured list without an injury designation, an indication the move was likely related to COVID-19 protocols. Cincinnati recalled INF/OF Max Schrock from Triple-A Louisville. ... RHP Luis Cessa (left intercostalis) planned to play catch. ... RHP Vladimir Gutiérrez is scheduled for Tommy John surgery next Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY
YANKEES 7, REDS 6

DJ LeMahieu capped his 34th birthday by sliding across the plate on Alexis Díaz's second straight wild pitch in the 10th inning, and the New York Yankees rallied from a four-run deficit to beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-6 Wednesday night and stop a three-game losing streak.

Luis Severino allowed three consecutive homers in a span of five pitches in the second inning as Cincinnati built a 4-0 lead, then left with right shoulder tightness.

Cincinnati allowed five unearned runs, four after second baseman Jonathan India's error on Anthony Rizzo's potential inning-ending double-play grounder in the third.

The Reds fell behind 5-4 and went ahead 6-5 before Giancarlo Stanton homered to the short porch in right field off Ian Gibaut in the eighth.

McClelland to become NCAA men's basketball committee chair

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Southwestern Athletic Conference Commissioner Charles McClelland will become the first representative from a historically Black college, university or league to chair the Division I men's basketball committee when he takes over next year.

The NCAA announced Thursday that McClelland, who has been with the SWAC since 2018, would be vice chair this season under Bradley athletic director Chris Reynold before taking on the role himself for the 2023-24 basketball season.

The committee's biggest responsibility is to select the field for the NCAA Tournament each March.

"It is a tremendous honor to be selected by my colleagues," said McClelland, who previously served as athletic director at Prairie View A&M and vice president of athletics at Texas Southern. "The NCAA Tournament is the greatest sporting event in the world and we will continue to work tirelessly to ensure the future success of this great enterprise."

Meanwhile, the Pac-12 appointed Arizona athletic director Dave Heeke to replace UCLA's Martin Jarmond on the committee following the Bruins' decision to leave their longtime conference for the Big Ten in 2024.

The announcements were made following the committee's annual summer meeting in Kissimmee, Florida.

Woods gets emotional sendoff from St. Andrews

BY DOUG FERGUSON
AP GOLF WRITER

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — Tiger Woods removed his cap a few strides from Swilcan Bridge, knowing Friday might be the last time he crossed over in a British Open at St. Andrews.

This is where the legends pause, pose and wave goodbye.

"Stop! Stop!" a few photographers cried out as they positioned themselves for another historic moment at the home of golf.

Tiger Woods

Woods kept right on walking, even as tears began to form in his eyes.

"That's when I started to realize — that's when I started thinking about — the next time it comes around here, I might not be around," Woods said.

He said this wouldn't be his last British Open. Woods just doesn't know if his 46-year-old body, battered by multiple surgeries on both legs and his back, would be fit enough to compete when it returns to the home of golf. Woods mentioned 2030. The R&A hasn't announced the rotation that far out.

Still, the moment was not lost on him.

Woods saluted the thousands of fans in the grandstands on the left, and thousands more who watched from hotel balconies and rooftops on the perimeter of the Old Course, some peering through windows, others without a ticket hanging from the top of the fence on the road down the right side of the 18th fairway.

Rory McIlroy looked over at him from the first fairway — he was starting his second round as Woods was finishing a 75 to miss the cut — and tipped his cap. Justin Thomas was on the first tee and nodded to Woods.

"As I got closer to the green, the ovation got louder," Woods said. "You could feel the warmth and you could feel the people from both sides. Felt like the whole tournament was right there."

It may as well have been.

This is where Woods won his first Open in 2000 to become the youngest player to complete the career Grand Slam. He won another claret jug at St. Andrews in 2005, the year Jack Nicklaus finished his major championship career.

No one has ever won an Open at St. Andrews three times, and Woods wasn't about to change that. The only thing ceremonial for him was his golf — a 78 in the first round, only one birdie in the second round despite the most benign conditions of the week.

No matter. The Old Course, which had been relatively quiet all morning, came to life the closer he made his way to the finish.

"The people knew that I wasn't going to make the cut," Woods said. "But the ovations got louder as I was coming home. And that to me was ... just the respect. I've always respected this event. I've always respected the traditions of the game."

"I put my heart and soul into this event over the years," he said. "And I think the people have appreciated my play."

Woods gave them little to celebrate on what might be his final round at St. Andrews. He only had four reasonable birdie chances. His flop shot over a pot bunker guarding the front pin on the 16th hit the top and rolled back into the sand, leading to his third double bogey of the week.

By then, it didn't matter. The people just wanted to see him.

After he ripped his drive over the Old Course Hotel sign and into the 17th fairway, hotel guests and spectators lined up against the wall in front of the hotel and the Jigger Inn. The grandstand was full behind the 17th, and people stood six deep in the space behind the road and the stands.

It was similar to when Nicklaus played for the last time in 2005. He was 65 and had announced months out it would be his last Open, his 166th and final major. Everyone knew it was coming.

Not even Woods knows his future, only that he was thankful — and lucky — to be playing an Open on the Old Course just 17 months after he crashed his car in Los Angeles and sustained so many broken bones that doctors contemplated amputation on his right leg.

He headed to the 18th tee, the home hole. All he said he could think about was whether to hit 3-wood or 5-wood. But as he walked off the tee and got closer to the bridge, he realized his caddie, Joe LaCava, was lagging behind. So were Matt Fitzpatrick and Max Homa, who rode shotgun for an emotional day involving the best player of their lifetimes in golf.

"It was amazing. It gave me goosebumps," said Fitzpatrick, who won his first major last month in the U.S. Open. "Just looking around, seeing everyone stood up, and giving him a standing ovation coming down 18. It was incredible. It's something that will live with me forever.

"It's thoroughly deserved, and I think towards the end of it, you could see he was a little bit emotional as well. Yeah, it was a big deal."

Not even Woods could deny that.

He just wished he could have written a better ending.

He chipped with a midiron to about 4 feet for one last chance at birdie, a fitting farewell. Thomas, Shane Lowry and Viktor Hovland were at their second shots to the first hole.

They all turned to watch Woods finish out.

He missed the putt.

All that mattered to Woods was an ovation he won't forget.

"It's very emotional for me," he said. "To me it felt like this might have been my last British Open here at St. Andrews. And the fans, the ovation and the warmth, it was an unbelievable feeling, I understand what Jack and Arnold (Palmer) had gone through in the past. I was kind of feeling that way there at the end."

US advances to W Championship final against Canada

BY ANNE M. PETERSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTERREY, Mexico — The U.S. women's national team will play Canada in the final of the CONCACAF W Championship for a spot in the 2024 Olympics.

The United States beat Costa Rica 3-0 in the semifinals Thursday night on goals from Emily Sonnett, Mallory Pugh and Ashley Sanchez. Canada downed Jamaica 3-0 in the late game to earn the other spot Monday night in the championship.

The four teams had already qualified for the region's berths at the 2023 Women's World Cup as the top finishers in the group stage. The winner of the W Championship additionally earns one of the region's spots in the Olympics.

The U.S. team extended its shutout streak in World Cup or Olympic qualifying matches to 32 games.

"I think we need to be overall sharper," Sonnett said about facing Canada. "I don't think our team's very satisfied with that win. There's a lot that we need to focus on."

The United States has won the past two World Cups, but the Americans are heading into next summer's tournament in Australia and New Zealand with a different look. Coach Vlatko Andonovski has focused on developing young talent since winning the bronze medal at last year's Olympics, and up-and-coming players including Sophia Smith and Mallory Pugh have cracked the starting lineup.

A few veterans remain, including Alex Morgan and Becky Sauerbrunn, who both started Thursday.

Morgan had the team's best chances early on. One of her opportunities, a left-footed shot, went wide left in the 13th minute.

Sanchez capped the victory with her goal in stoppage time.

"Obviously, it's a semifinal, we're here to go to the final, to win the final," Murphy said. "That was one step to get to there."

base. Aaron Judge struck out against Díaz (2-1), Anthony Rizzo was intentionally walked and Stanton fell behind 0-2 in the count. Díaz threw a slider that went off the mitt of catcher Tyler Stephenson.

Díaz paused to grab the rosin bag, then threw a slider that bounced off Stephenson toward the first base dugout as LeMahieu scampered home ahead of the catcher's throw to Díaz covering the plate.

Michael King (6-1), the seventh Yankees pitcher, escaped first-and-third, no-outs trouble in the 10th when Matt Reynolds struck out and Kyle Farmer grounded into a 5-4-3 double play.

Cincinnati hit three straight homers for the first time since May 5, 2019, against San Francisco's Jeff Samardzija when Eugenio Suárez, Jesse Winker and Derek Dietrich went deep.

Joey Votto drove in two runs and Stephenson hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth off Sears as the Reds saw their season-high five-game winning streak snapped.

Families should hold on to discharge papers

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: My father died three weeks ago.

After his death, I talked with a close friend whose father died in 2007.

Our experiences inspired me to write to you. Please keep your military discharge papers in a safe place, and be sure your family members know where these documents are located!

Our fathers were both veterans who were buried with full military honors, but they were almost denied that right due to bureaucratic issues.

In both cases, the funeral homes contacted the VA for our fathers' discharge papers, only to be told that the VA had no record of their service. (Some years ago, a fire destroyed a VA building, which may explain why some records were lost.)

Without those papers, it was impossible to prove they had served, and without that proof, neither of our families could have had the honor guard at our father's funerals. By superhuman effort, an employee of the office that stores some of my father's documents found his discharge papers and got them to the funeral home just in time for the honor guard to be arranged.

My friend's father had been active in a veteran's organization whose members were able to arrange the honor guard on his behalf, but for both our families, it was a near miss and very stressful.

It's never easy to discuss topics like these ahead of time, but if you or your closest family members were in the service, please get this straight before need arises. I don't want anyone else to have to go through what we did.

Thank you for the good work you do. — Proud Daughter of a Veteran

Dear Proud Daughter: I'm very sorry for your loss, and I appreciate being able to publish this as a helpful public service.

Casual dater needs to find her missing person

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I met "John," who I thought was an evolved, caring, and understanding human.

We've been dating for nine months.

We do not tell each other that we love each other, or talk about the future.

John is divorced going on two years, so it is understandable that he's not in a place to commit and he doesn't want to marry again.

John has a 9-year-old son, "Caleb," who I've spent time with.

Caleb ignores me, doesn't answer questions, and lacks manners.

John says he's shy and takes time to warm up, which is fair.

I had a similar upbringing so I can empathize to a degree.

Lately, I find that I don't enjoy spending time with them.

Are these signs that this is a casual relationship and works for now, or do I need to cut the cord and move on?

I want a partner. I hope to find my person, be crazy in love, have a healthy relationship, and possibly get married again someday (I've been divorced for 11 years).

I'm either settling, or I'm learning how to not be so attached.

What are your thoughts?

— Casual?

Dear Casual?: If you hang in there without the requisite "crazy in love" part, then you would be settling. "Crazy in love" is what gets you across the finish line in a family system like this.

Even if you believe you've forgotten what it really feels like to be in love, I assure you — when you finally find your person, you'll feel brave enough that you'll be willing to take on a roomful of angry adolescents in order to be in a family together.

I think it's time to transition to friendship with John, and issue a "missing person" alert. He's out there.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Unsettled conditions in your surroundings are not conducive to clarity or peace of mind. Get everything organized so that you and a loved one can spend some quality time together. Tap into your creative energy and imagination.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Handle your business so you're clear to relax. Bingeing your current show might seem inviting, but you'll be much more comfortable once you have all the household chores and other obligations out of the way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Be content with what you have. The things that bring the greatest happiness may already be yours. If you're feeling the fear of missing out, remind yourself of the people and situations in your life that give you joy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Let your inner efficiency order the roost. Take practical steps to get your daily routines better organized. You may feel pressured by a loved one into doing something that does not suit your aesthetic sense.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You may feel an obligation to live up to someone's expectations. Remember to be appreciative of your friends and avoid taking people for granted. Treat others as you would be treated by being reliable and thoughtful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Find a quiet nook or place where your mind can roam. Not only might you do your best work in a peaceful place, but you can also deepen your understanding of yourself and of life. You and a partner could be in perfect harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — A sense of duty could add a serious note to your plans for carefree playtime. Don't let a brief bout of boredom put a damper on your happy thoughts. An invitation or drop in visitor might quickly change your outlook.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — It may be time to adjust your sails. One of your goals may no longer be achievable or may seem blocked by circumstances beyond your control. Enjoy the company of people who add a twist of whimsy to your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — An exchange of information and imaginative ideas can bring you and a companion closer. You may decide to spend less time on activities that won't fatten your wallet and more time pursuing the things that do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You may think of some new cost-cutting measures. Someone might decide that it is time to explore the greener grass elsewhere if you point out your differences. Focus on the things you both have in common.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Peace and tranquility might arrive soon, but friends or family members may draw attention to a lack of continuity. For the moment, you should lay low, focus on fulfilling your responsibilities and avoid disagreements.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — The stars in your eyes may give you a different viewpoint. The ability to create permanence while adapting to change may be one of your assets. This is a good day for creative projects and to grow closer to loved ones.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): — Hold on tight if movers and shakers are switching things up. You can focus on your own personal responsibilities and interests to stay grounded while things are in process. A few well-chosen words may calm things down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): — Pop goes your popularity. Your people skills and talents are lurking beneath the surface and can be used to attract and amuse others. A loved one or partner could be intent on securing material success and power.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — Practical strategies can improve your financial security. It is in your best interest, however, to focus on existing obligations before you take on any new ones. Never solve a short-term problem by creating a long-term one.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Be patient and let love win even if your partner seems to be chasing personal ambitions much more than affection now. Avoid a misunderstanding or rift and hold off on making key business or financial decisions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — You may feel more ambitious but also feel frustrated by someone's lack of cooperation. Understand that some people have different priorities. If your solutions have been successful in the past, repeat them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — Clear thinking can be an asset, and a practical approach can help you achieve your objectives. Be patient and wait for better timing to launch new ventures. Reap the harvest of having a devoted partner by your side.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — If you are witnessing a clash between opposing factions, you might need to walk a balance beam to maintain the peace. A coworker could have your best interests at heart and lend a helping hand when needed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — A loved one may go to extremes to achieve their ambitions. If someone's eyes seem bigger than their stomach, find ways to point out a moderate approach. Show some affection for loved ones and avoid power struggles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — Choosing the best way to invest your money might feel like riding a merry-go-round, reaching out to grab an elusive golden ring. It is best to not gamble with your hard-earned cash. Focus on building family security.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — A desire to climb the ladder of material success can be motivating. If someone has a different approach, you may feel provoked to take an extreme action to get what you want. Ask questions; you may discover something you missed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Temper your social networking and friendliness with common sense. You might forget that some people are not on board with your priorities. A partner or coworker could seem to be fixated on having their own way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): — You may be pampered and spoiled by someone's attention. Enjoy a surge of enthusiasm and use it to make your life more rewarding. You might see no limits to what can be accomplished but do not take first steps today.

Griner's lawyer claims doctor's note for drug

BY JIM HEINTZ
ASSOCIATED PRESS

KHIMKI, Russia — A lawyer for WNBA star Brittney Griner at her drug possession trial in Russia on Friday gave the court a U.S. doctor's letter recommending she use medical cannabis to treat pain.

Griner, a two-time Olympic gold medalist and standout for the Phoenix Mercury, was arrested at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport in February after customs officials said they found vape canisters containing cannabis oil in her luggage. She faces up to 10 years in prison if convicted on charges of transporting drugs.

In court last week, Griner pleaded guilty and acknowledged possessing the canisters but said she had no criminal intent and said they were in her luggage because she packed hastily in her return to Russia to play for the UMMC Ekaterinburg basketball team during the WNBA's offseason.

In Russia's judicial system, admitting guilt doesn't automatically end a trial. Since that plea, her court sessions have focused on in-person and written testimony to her good character and athletic prowess.

Griner wore a Nirvana T-shirt as she sat inside the defendant's cage that is customary in Russian courtrooms. At one point, she held up a photo of fellow WNBA players wearing her name and No. 42 on their uniforms in tribute during part of Sunday's All-Star Game in Chicago.

"The attending physician gave Brittney recommendations for the use of medical cannabis," said her lawyer, Maria Blagovolina. "The permission was issued on behalf of the Arizona Department of Health."

Brittney Griner

The defense on Friday also submitted tests she underwent as part of an anti-doping check, which didn't detect any prohibited substances in her system.

The next hearing of Griner's case was scheduled for July 26.

U.S. President Joe Biden and Secretary of State Antony Blinken have said they are doing all they could to win her release, as well as that of other Americans the U.S. considers "wrongly detained" by Russia, including former Marine Paul Whelan who is serving 16 years on an espionage conviction.

Washington may have little leverage with Moscow, though, because of strong animosity over its military operation in Ukraine.

"In the hearings yesterday and today what became very clear is the tremendous amount of respect and admiration both in the United States and here in Russia where Miss Griner has been playing basketball for seven years, not only for her professional achievements but for her character and integrity," U.S. Embassy charge d'affaires Elizabeth Rood said outside the courthouse in the Moscow suburb of Khimki, where the airport is located.

The director and team captain of UMMC Ektaerinburg testified on her behalf on Thursday.

Russian media have speculated that Griner could be swapped for arms trader Viktor Bout.

After improbable Super Bowl run, confident Bengals dig in

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI BENGALS (13-8, Super Bowl runner-up)

CAMP SITE: Cincinnati, Ohio

LAST YEAR: Coming off a 4-11-1 run in coach Zac Taylor's second season, expectations for the Bengals were tempered. Franchise quarterback Joe Burrow was still recovering from knee surgery when the season started and acknowledged that he wasn't entirely comfortable on it until around the halfway point. Cincinnati finished 10-7 in the regular season, good enough for the AFC North title as rookie receiver Ja'Marr Chase emerged as a star. Nail-biting wins over the Raiders, Titans and Chiefs put the Bengals in the Super Bowl for the first time in 33 years but they came up short, losing to the Los Angeles Rams 23-20.

CAMP NEEDS: Get key guys healthy. Cappa, expected to start at center, was limited in summer activities because of a core abdominal injury, but's expected to be good to go for training camp. Tee Higgins, who with Chase and Tyler Boyd make up one of the best set of wideouts in the NFL, is still rehabbing from shoulder surgery. The Bengals need some depth at the position, Last year's backups Stanley Morgan, Mike Thomas and Trent Taylor will get a look, and rookie Kwamie Lassiter II stood out in organized team workouts.

KEY CAMP COMPETITIONS: While most of the retooled offensive line seems set, there will be competition at left guard. Jackson Carman seems to be the front-runner — he lost his starting job midway through last season — and D'Ante Smith and rookie Cordell Volson are in that mix.

The Bengals are looking for rookie Hill to emerge as a key contributor at cornerback and maybe push Eli Apple for a starting job.

EXPECTATIONS: Off the charts. The Bengals love Burrow's toughness, confidence and steely eyed leadership, which lifts the entire team. A retooled offensive line should keep the third-year quarterback on his feet more often and open up lanes for RB Joe Mixon, who has distinguished himself despite being limited by bad blocking in recent years.

Questions about the future of safety and team leader Jessie Bates could be a distraction.

The Bengals placed the franchise tag on him for this season, and the fifth-year pro is frustrated by not being able to reach an agreement with the team on a long-term contract.

Revamped Colts focusing on playoffs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — INDIANAPOLIS COLTS (9-8)

CAMP SITE: Westfield, Indiana

LAST YEAR: Carson Wentz, NFL rushing champion Jonathan Taylor and a solid defense put Indianapolis in playoff position. But losing their last two, including an inexplicable debacle at struggling Jacksonville in Week 18, left the Colts out of the postseason and in the midst of a major overhaul. General manager Chris Ballard traded Wentz to Washington then acquired 2016 league MVP Matt Ryan in a deal with Atlanta.

IMPORTANT ADDITIONS: Ryan, Ngakoue, Gilmore, WR Alec Pierce, S Rodney McLeod, OL Bernhard Raimann, CB Brandon Facyson, OL Dennis Kelly, S Armani Watts, RB Phillip Lindsay, LB Brandon King, DE Ifeadi Odenigbo, defensive coordinator Gus Bradley and assistant coaches Cato June, John Fox, Mike Mitchell and Reggie Wayne.

IMPORTANT LOSSES: Wentz, defensive coordinator Matt Eberflus, RG Mark Glowinski, S Khari Willis, WR T.Y. Hilton, LT Eric Fisher, WR Zach Pascal, OG Chris Reed, DE Al-Quadin Muhammad, DE Kemoko Turay, RB Marlon Mack, CB Rock Ya-Sin, S/ST George Odum, CB Xavier Rhodes and LB Matthew Adams.

CAMP NEEDS: Ryan should become the Colts sixth opening-day starter in six years and must get acclimated to a new organization for the first time since his rookie season. Coach Frank Reich also is looking for new starters at left tackle and right guard, while Bradley adds a slightly different defense than Eberflus used over the past four seasons. The Colts also will be closely monitoring the health of three-time All-Pro LB Darius Leonard, who had back surgery in June. Leonard is expected to miss the start of camp. Indy also needs to find Willis' replacement after his abrupt retirement in mid-June.

KEY CAMP COMPETITIONS: While Matt Pryor opens camp as the top left tackle on Indy's depth chart, four players will vie for the two starting offensive line jobs — Pryor, veterans Danny Pinter and Dennis Kelly and rookie Bernhard Raimann, a third-round draft pick. While Gilmore is expected to win one starting CB job and Pro Bowler Kenny Moore III will keep his job against slot receivers, Isaiah Rodgers, Brandon Facyson and S Rodney McLeod all could be in the mix for the other CB spot. It will also be interesting to see how much playing time second-round pick Alec Pierce earns at WR.

EXPECTATIONS: Last season's late collapse stung and provided plenty of offseason motivation for the Colts. The key to making the playoffs, and a deep postseason run, will be Ryan.

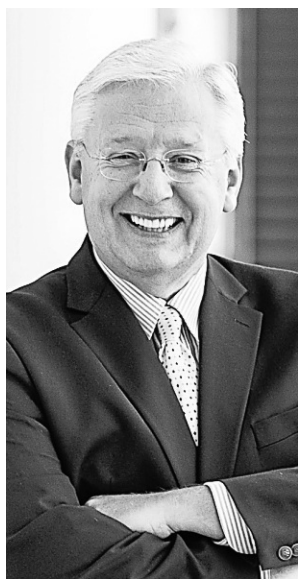
What Is A Prohibited Investment In An IRA?



Layin it on the line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

The IRS restricts specific investment options for an IRA.

These restrictions do not allow investment in collectibles, antiques, and other assets. Here is a list: If an IRA invests in collectibles, the amount invested is considered distributed in the year invested. The account owner may have to pay a 10% additional tax on early distributions.

Here are some examples of prohibited assets held in an IRA:

- Artwork
- Rugs and other home furnishings
- Antiques
- Precious metals, some exceptions for gold bullion
- Gems, diamonds, other precious stones
- Stamps and coins as collections
- Alcoholic beverages
- Certain other tangible personal property based on the exact nature of the asset
- A partnership or company that owns sells or buys these items could be a named asset within an IRA.
- Insurance products are also not allowed except for annuities.

Assets that are allowed to be held in an IRA include:

- Stocks
- Bonds
- Mutual funds
- Real Estate Investment Trusts
- Brokerage accounts
- Banks products such as CDs and savings account
- Insurance company annuities

If your IRA is engaged in any prohibitive practice, you may be exposed to being taxed as a distribution and also be liable for a 10% penalty. Remember that an IRA is just a tax-deferred receptacle for invested assets. Almost any category of investment can be placed there, and different IRA custodians make their money by selling and managing these assets. If you open one at a bank, you'll be able to invest in CDs or savings accounts. If you open it at an insurance company annuity could be a viable option. If you select to open an IRA at a brokerage and mutual fund company, you'll be able to invest in mutual funds, stocks, bonds as well as other options.

Always make sure your IRA matches up with your goals, and if you do not fully understand the investment options available to you, get a second opinion. Owning an IRA can be a massive advantage to you in later years, make certain your IRA is designed for your specific period and goals.

Suns match Pacers' offer for Ayton, keeping nucleus intact

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHOENIX — Deandre Ayton finally has his new deal from the Phoenix Suns, who simply weren't willing to let him get away for nothing.

A person with knowledge of the situation said the Suns quickly decided to match a $133 million, four-year offer sheet that Ayton agreed to Thursday with the Indiana Pacers. The person spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the Suns had not publicly announced the decision.

The Athletic first reported Phoenix matching the offer. ESPN first reported that Ayton had agreed with the Pacers.

The move means the Suns — at least for now — keep their nucleus of Ayton and the All-Star backcourt of Devin Booker and Chris Paul. The trio pushed Phoenix to the NBA Finals in 2021 and a franchise-record 64 wins during the most recent regular season.

The No. 1 pick in the 2018 draft, Ayton was eligible to get an extension from Phoenix last summer.

That didn't happen, and he became a restricted free agent this summer — meaning Phoenix had the chance to match any offers. Once Indiana made its move, the Suns countered quickly.

Phoenix has been linked to interest in acquiring Brooklyn star Kevin Durant during the offseason, but Ayton can't be used as trade bait because of the new deal.

The Suns' move is a blow to the Pacers, who were hoping to add Ayton as a pivotal piece in a promising young core that includes 22-year-old point guard Tyrese Haliburton, who was acquired in a February trade with Sacramento.
